Going Higher

Until the beginning of the 20th century, man had been limited to living and traveling on ground level. A group of visionaries imagined that life could be better. They dreamed of viewing the world from the sky. Not content with ground-level living, these innovators pushed technology and the known laws of science to their limits. They created flying machines that could stay in the air for days, travel miles above the earth, and move at astonishing speeds. The question was no longer, “Can man fly?” Instead it became, “Who will win the Battle of the Skies?” Join us this summer to compete for the answer!

Being content with the basics of Christian living isn’t what we’re called to do. Much like the innovators of the early 20th century, we should not settle but should continually strive to go higher in our Christian walk.
